The Obertor (Upper Gate)

The Obertor (Upper Gate)

It is also worth visiting the former monastery and, next to it, the impressive tower of the Church of St Mary - one of the most beautiful Baroque church towers in South Germany. The town wall with its battlement walk and imposing Kinzigtor and Obertor Towers, which give a hint of the defensive fortifications of olden days, also bear witness to the rich past of the town. Elegant living and pleasures for the senses are also available à la carte: superb local wines, typical regional cuisine and gourmet specialities. Here, what goes onto the plate is growing right on the doorstep.

Churches

The parish church of St Mary

One of the defining elements of Gengenbach's charming skyline is St Martin's Church, a church with a choir tower which is unique in Ortenau; the other is the former Benedictine abbey church, now the parish church of St Mary. It is joined to the palace-like main abbey building, which now contains the presbytery and a technical university.

St Martin's Church

The interior of St Martin's Church (15th century) is designed in a unpretentious Baroque style; the organ has a distinctive double case, making it one of the most unusual Baroque organs in Baden. The church's bell tower is a magnificent example of South German Baroque tower building; the 12th century main church has three naves, containing a wide selection of paintings and sculptures depicting salvation scenes from the Bible (re-Romanisation 1892-1906). Baden's second largest organ from the Romantic period (38 stops) fills the "basilica in the Kinzig Valley" with its music. The inner courtyard garden and herb garden recall the times when the church was still part of a monastery. A walk up the hill known as the "Bergle" takes you to the 17th century Chapel of St James (Jakobuskapelle) and the nearby Chapel of the Holy Sepulchre, with its stunning view over the town and the Kinzig Valley landscape.

Löwenberg House

Löwenberg House Museum

Located in an 18th century patrician house in the heart of the Old Town of Gengenbach, the Löwenberg House Museum is home to exhibitions and events of the highest calibre, with the focus on temporary exhibitions of contemporary art, painting, photography and object art. Guided tours, lectures, matinées and workshops attract a broad range of visitors. The kinetic objects presented in the exhibition rooms are islands inviting visitors to spend time, look and marvel. During Advent, they correspond to the Advent Calendar. The museum shop supplements the presentations by offering an unusual range of gifts.

Historic Old Town

The historic charm of Zell am Harmersbach

Medieval half-timbered buildings and Jugendstil facades, picturesque corners and side streets, little shops and cafés are what give Zell its charm.

Many of the town's buildings still provide a glimpse into the history of what used to be the smallest Imperial town in the Holy Roman Empire.

There are even some signs of the founding of the town in 1330: There is the striking Stork Tower in the town centre, the "Hirschturm" - the former bastioned tower, or the "alte Wäschkuchi" - the town's first laundry, where the housewives would laboriously wash their washing in the industrial stream and gossip about everything under the sun.

Statue of Mary in the pilgrimage church

An interesting fact: Zell was an early place of pilgrimage, with the pilgrimage church of "St Mary of the Chains" amongst one of the largest pilgrimage churches in the Black Forest.

If you would like to explore our little town on your own, simply follow the markings on the ground to discover the historic highlights of Zell.

Tip: Free guided tours of the town on Tuesdays in May to October.

Stork Tower

Stork Tower Museum

The almost 700 year-old Stork Tower is the emblem of the town of Zell am Harmersbach and has housed the town's museum since 1960.

In the Middle Ages, the Tower was used as a starvation dungeon and prison. The exhibition includes the prison with the "shame bell", thumbscrews and other instruments of torture, plus 3500 craft exhibits, pictures, minerals and coins, an old dolls' house, Black Forest clocks and tableware from Zeller Ceramics.

Highlights: The "Orchestron Zamba" mechanical musical instrument and the Basel Dance of Death in terracotta.

Fürstenberger Hof

Fürstenberger Hof

The Fürstenberger Hof Local Museum in Zell-Unterharmersbach presents the everyday life of Black Forest farmers 50, 100 and even 300 years ago. The typical Kinzig Valley farmhouse has been a museum of local history since 1974. The house, stall and barn are all under one roof. There is so much to discover in the collection of farming exhibits from the last 300 years. The building is fully furnished as if the family had simply upped and left, offering visitors the chance to really feel and experience how they lived.

Villa Haiss

Villa Haiss Museum

Modern art in a small Black Forest town with at least 120 works by photographers, painters, sculptors, graphic designers and object artists. Walter Bischoff has been exhibiting in the spacious rooms of the former industrialist's home, the Villa Haiss since 1997. The sheer range of international art from the last 60 years is wonderfully inspiring. A particularly eye-catching piece is the brightly painted section of the Berlin Wall, 6 m wide and 3.4 m high. The unusual piece of contemporary history enriches the broad spectrum of contemporary art presented by gallery owner Walter Bischoff in his museum.

Zeller Ceramics

Hand painting of the "Rooster and Hen"

The Zeller Ceramics factory (founded in 1794) is one of the oldest ceramics manufacturers in Germany. Its most famous design, the "Rooster and Hen" started its triumphal march around the world in 1898. Alongside this traditional tableware, the Zeller Ceramics factory produces many hand-painted designs in the modern country house style.

The factory outlet has an attractive range of designs and shapes on sale. In the company's museum, visitors can admire exhibits from over 200 years of company history and watch the tableware being painted.

Historic Storehouse & Old Mill

Historic storehouse

This fine example of the farming heritage of the typical Black Forest village stands at the centre of the Rathausplatz in Oberharmersbach. With the storehouse dating from 1761, the mill with workings from the 19th century and the old bakery, the museum complex provides an accurate insight into the ways in which people lived and worked in days gone by.

The exhibits have all been provided by the people of the village.

Gallus Saw & Lourdes Grotto

The Gallus Saw

The Gallus Saw is located at the entrance to the Zuwald Valley and was used as a "Hofsäge" for sawing up tree trunks using water power. The building was erected in 1834 and is now a small museum, with information boards. This means that it is open for viewing at any time. The saw still works perfectly, but is only used for display purposes. Dates of displays are published in the community events calendar. Directly opposite stands the Lourdes Grotto, opened in 1926. It is intended to commemorate those who died or disappeared in the two World Wars.

Brandenkopf with Viewing Tower

The Brandenkopf - at the very top of the region

The Brandenkopf, at 945 m above sea level, is the highest elevation in the Central Black Forest. The view from the Viewing Tower, which is around 30 m high, brings the Rhine Valley, the Vosges mountains and, on a clear day, the Alps, a little bit closer. In addition to the sandstone tower, the mountain restaurant with hiking hostel and play area and the many hiking paths and mountain-bike routes makes the Brandenkopf a popular destination. Winter hikes along the signposted snowshoe routes are also possible. Walkers on the famous "Westweg" long-distance hiking path will reach the Brandenkopf at Stage 6 - from Harkhof in the direction of Hausach.

To save the storehouse of the Schwendenseppenhof in Welschensteinach from collapsing, it was restored from the ground up in 2001 using the original building techniques.

The masonry was formed from quarry stones jointed with loam. The cellar ceiling was lined with clay rolls and the roof covered with straw.

The 18th century granary is very well preserved. It was added later – the storehouse itself is much older. It is now used as a museum displaying everything that farming life in Welschensteinach

Church of the Holy Cross

Steinach is home to one of the most beautiful Baroque churches, and the only one with a bulbous spire. The foundations of the spire date back to around 1150. The one surviving Gothic remnant is the tabernacle, from around 1480, in the basement of the tower. The parish church as it stands today dates from 1750. Highlights inside the church include the high altar, the two side altars, a picture of the Lord's Prayer and a medieval pieta next to the pulpit.

The sculptor Joseph Kaltenbach created some of the beautiful sculptures. The church shines in fully glory after its recent renovation, when the simple light fittings were replaced by more appropriate magnificent chandeliers.

Chapel of St Mary of the Snow

A thorough, extensive renovation from the spring to the end of 2015 has preserved the chapel, which was modelled on the "Santa Maria ad Nives" in Rome, as a pretty, historic gem.

The oldest part of the "Snow Chapel", which is now the choir, was probably built in the Late Gothic period in the second half of the 15th century and was first mentioned in the "Waydbrief" of 1522. The nave, built in the Baroque style, was built in 1715-1716, with both parts being matched to each other.

A Baroque altar dating from the early 18th century adorns the little church, which is lit by six leaded glass windows.

One of the most culturally valuable items is the wooden coffered ceiling from 1785, with 42 symbols from the Litany of Loreto.

Historic Old Town

Town hall / weekly market

Haslach is a very old town – the first settlement here dates back to Roman times. Haslach blossomed for the first time in the 13th century, when the town was the seat of the mining court and became the centre of an important silver mining district. From the 17th century, Haslach continued to develop as a market town. Its market streets and squares, which were broad for the time, have survived of the "Deutsche Fachwerkstrasse", the tourist route through the most attractive German medieval towns. With almost 60

Vulkan Concentration Camp Memorial

Memorial to a concentration camp

The memorial site commemorates 1700 prisoners from 20 different countries who were abused, tortured and made to do forced labour in three Nazi concentration camps during the last eight months of the Second World War.

Twelve information boards tell the story of the concentration camp in words and pictures. Seating for up to 35 people provides an opportunity for discussions and teaching for school groups on longer visits. Guided tours for groups of visitors can be booked in advance.

"Segen Gottes" Silver Mine

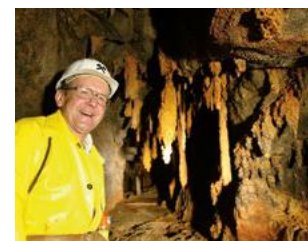

Visitors in the upper tunnel

The old "Segen Gottes" silver mine is one of the most important historic mines in the Black Forest. The mine has witnessed around 800 years of mining history. Silver-bearing fluorspar and heavy spar corridors of rare beauty have been opened up on three levels in the mine. The mine's treasures also include crystal deposits, stalagmites and stalactites unlike those in any other historic mines in the region, plus tunnels

Opening hours:

Urenkopf Tower

View over Haslach

On the summit of Haslach's "local mountain", the Urenkopf, at a height of 554 m, stands the slim, beautiful Urenkopf Tower (183 steps) providing a magnificent panoramic view of the Central Black Forest as far as the River Rhine, the Vosges and the Schauinsland mountain near Freiburg.

The Urenkopf Tower

The viewing tower is built using four main supports made from the trunks of heavy Douglas firs, braced with large, V-shaped struts in the same wood. The steel staircase has comfortably close-meshed grating steps and rises via 11 platforms to the viewing platform, 33 m above the ground, which, at 43 m², is large enough to provide plenty of space for visitors.

The tower can only be reached on foot, using various routes of different lengths; the shortest way is from the "Urenkopf Tower hikers' car park" (B294), which takes about 25 minutes.

Opening hours: All year round except New Year's Eve or in icy weather.

Black Forest Museum of Traditional Costumes / Old Capuchin Monastery

Old Capuchin Monastery

The Black Forest Museum of Traditional Costumes in Haslach in the Kinzig Valley displays over 100 lifelike costumed figures in large showcases, enhanced by beautifully crafted individual items and objects from farming life used on weekdays and festivals.

Traditional costumes from Gutach

The museum is also in an unusual setting: The building that houses what is probably the most significant collection of traditional costumes in Baden-Württemberg is now the only completely surviving Capuchin monastery complex from the Baroque era throughout southern Germany.

The monastery church, Loreto chapel, cloister and monks' chancel, refectory, infirmary and an example of a cell show how the monks lived and how the former monastery was built.

Opening hours:

Hansjakob Museum in the Freihof

The "Freihof"

The "Freihof" was built by the South German poet and priest Dr Heinrich Hansjakob (1837-1916) in 1913 as his retirement home. Since 1964, it has housed the Hansjakob Museum, which was completely remodelled in 2014 in line with modern perspectives. Using a wide range of exhibits, this literary museum presents Hansjakob as a complex personality and a versatile author, priest and politician.

Heinrich Hansjakob

The "Freihof" also contains two art exhibitions. On the first floor, there is an exhibition of the works of Carl Sandhaas (1801-1859), an important representative of South German Romanticism, and the top floor houses an extensive collection with works by Otto Laible (1898-1962), who was a member of the

"Baden Secession" group of artists and who, as a professor, worked on the rebuilding of the Karlsruhe Academy of Fine Arts after 1945.

St Afra Parish Church

Mühlenbach is famous for its colourful church festivals far beyond the borders of Germany. The Corpus Christi banner is one of the longest in Germany, and at the Harvest Festival, the Church of St Afra is decorated with countless beautifully designed corn images. On the Sunday two days before Shrove Tuesday, the service is enlivened by the humorous involvement of the members of the Carnival Guild of Fools and the "Guggenmusik" bands.

One of the longest Corpus Christi banners in Germany

The church building itself is also an absolute gem. The Gothic church tower and probably the church too were built in 1512. After the church was extended in 1961 to 1965, a new nave was also built. Jakob Häring's Baroque building was incorporated into the new structure and the old building substance carefully retained. This High Altar was built in 1743 by Anton Martin from Schuttern. It has seven different altar pieces that are changed during the course of the year. A painting over the High Altar shows the patron saint of the church, St Afra, whose feast day is celebrated on the first Sunday in August. The fire and chains are a symbol of her death as a martyr. On her right stand St Katharina and St Barbara. The side altar on the right is dedicated to the Fourteen Holy Helpers. The altar on the left shows the mysteries of the rosary on fifteen medallions.

The Village Church, or Dorfkirche, in Hausach is one of the oldest churches in the south-west and is also the town's oldest structure. The Roman tympanum over the "Blessings Door" and parts of the nave date from the 11th century. A few exposed remains also prove that the interior was decorated with frescoes; the Last Judgement on the west wall behind the organ is particularly significant, as it is unique in this region. The impressive town-centre building

The former Merchant's House, a striking half-timbered building in the centre of the village, is home to the Hasemann-Liebich Art Museum. The two great Black Forest painters Wilhelm Hasemann and Curt Liebich lived and worked in Gutach. They founded the well known Gutach painters' colony, to which many famous artists belonged. Through their works, they made both the Black Forest as a cultural landscape and the beautiful

Mountain Chapel

Dr Ludwig Stemmer (1828-1908) worked as a doctor and priest in Lauterbach. He was famous beyond the region for his "Kneipp methods" (cold water cures) and can thus also be described as the founder of tourism in Lauterbach. He was a great nature-lover and walked in the nearby forests every day. In 1890, he had a small chapel built, known as the "Bergkapelle" (mountain chapel), on a rock below the Trombach. It is made entirely of round timber, and the interior is very simple. The bell in the tower is often rung by hikers who stop here after their climb.

Historic Old Town

Wolfach old town with castle and Kinzig landscaped area

The Lords of Wolfach and their castle (see 'Schlössle') were first mentioned in documents in 1084. In the 12th century, they founded a systematically planned, fortified town at the narrowest part of the Kinzig valley. The original town layout, with its broad main street and narrow alleys, has survived to this day. The "Lower Gate" and the "Hunger Tower" are the last witnesses to the time when the town was founded. The castle was given its present appearance in 1671/81 and, with the fresco-painted Town Hall and town houses standing close to each other, defines the historic town centre.

Night-watchman's patrol

In the heart of the town, visitors can stroll around the shops, restaurants and cafés and enjoy the atmosphere. The large market square in front of the Town Hall provides a unique setting for the weekly markets and open-air events. Here, folklore evenings with the famous traditional "Bollenhut" costumes, concerts or the night-watchman's patrol are an unforgettable experience. Water is present everywhere in Wolfach. It bubbles out of fountains, flows through the town stream in the main street, the "Riesner", and provides an opportunity to play and cool down in the Castle moat. The Kinzig flows through the heart of the town, keeping the landscaped areas and the Flößerpark cool and fresh.

Fashion designer Jochen Scherzinger, who has also become famous in the arts world through his photographs of Black Forest traditional costumes, has created a new work for Kirnbach which is unique in its own way. “Schlössle” Castle Ruins

The Schlössle from the south

One kilometre to the north of Wolfach Old Town stand the clearly visible ruins of an old knight's castle on a hilltop surrounded by mighty beech trees. Alongside the defences and courtyard walls, the stump of the castle keep can also be seen. The ancestral castle of the Lords of Wolfach, now known affectionately as the “Schlössle”, was built in the middle of the 11th century as the centre of their rule in the Kinzig and Wolf valley. The complex was abandoned after the town castle was built. Visitors can discover interesting details about the material from which the castle was built on the geological tour “About gneiss and granite” (start at the Weihermatte playground).

The history of glass-making in the Black Forest dates back centuries. The last crystal glass factory which still practices the traditional art of melting and shaping the glass, blowing it and then cutting it by hand is the Dorotheenhütte in Wolfach.

Visitors also have the unique opportunity to create their own coloured vase under the guidance of the glass makers.

The glass museum takes you on a journey through more than 2,000 years of glass history. The cinema in the museum tells visitors all about the production of high-quality crystal glasses. The museum also includes the history of Christmas tree decorations, with over 1,000 exhibits.

The large factory shop next door offers a huge selection of crystal glasses. There is also a stunningly decorated Christmas village, presenting a vast range of hand-blown Christmas tree decorations. In the Market Barn, you can buy regional products, from Black Forest cherry schnapps to Black Forest Whisky. Other products (such as Zeller ceramics – Cock and Hen, Steiff, ...) round off the selection.

When it comes to food and drink, the nature reserve chef in the “Hüttenklaus” restaurant/café serves regional specialities such as the home-made filled pasta cases found throughout Baden and Swabia, or home-cooked Black Forest cherry gateau.

Opening hours:

Daily 9 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. (last admission to museum and factory: 4.30 p.m.)

Closed on 25.12. and 1.1.

“Schüttesäge” Museum

Old log saw

The museum provides a fascinating insight into the technology of timber rafting and the life of the raftsmen. The citizens of Schiltach and Wolfach dominated timber rafting as far as Strasbourg until the end of the 19th century. This was the cutting-edge transport industry of the times! There are also displays covering tanning and timber: Leather manufacture, forest management, timber working, half-timbered building and bark collection for bark tanning. An old saw that is still water-driven and the power transmitting

Historic Old Town

The Outer Mill, Schiltach's oldest building

Schiltach in the Kinzig Valley – a charming half-timbered town

Half-timbered houses, timber rafting, a lively history and picturesque squares await you when you visit the little town of Schiltach in the central Kinzig Valley. The Old Town of Schiltach is one of the most famous and loveliest day trip destinations in the Black Forest. Here it is possible to enjoy the peace and charm of the little romantic spa town all year round - the kind of little town that only appears in picture books. The unique half-timbered historic Old Town with countless artistically renovated half-timbered buildings, the medieval market square with its fountain and 16th century Town Hall and the four Schiltach museums make the town the perfect destination for a day trip. The town has proudly maintained its traditions and cultural treasures, such as timber rafting, leather and sawn handicrafts, for years and yet has still managed to keep up with the times. Schiltach lies at the confluence of the Schiltach and Kinzig rivers, bordered by forested slopes. Schiltach is also the ideal starting point for excursions and exploratory trips in the Black Forest. It is a wonderful base for discovering the wonders of nature all around.

The historic Town Hall and half-timbered buildings in Schiltach

The half-timbered Old Town of Schiltach

A living piece of Black Forest history

Schiltach offers the visitor a range of attractions. For one thing, there are four museums, covering town and industrial history, timber rafting and handicrafts waiting to be discovered. The best way to explore Schiltach is on a guided tour. Open guided tours, free of charge, are offered by the Schiltach Tourist Information Office every Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. from May to September inclusive, starting from the Schüttesäge building (Hauptstrasse 1). You can book your preferred dates for your trip at any time, of course.

Museum in the Marketplace

The Museum in the Marketplace

Full of stories! This is meant literally at the Museum in the Marketplace in Schiltach. The history of Schiltach and Lehengericht is brought to life with selected exhibits. Audio stations tell historic anecdotes and information terminals offer the facts and images to go with them. The Museum in the Marketplace provides an overview of the history of this little town, which was first mentioned in documents over 700 years ago. From the history of Schiltach Castle, reconstructed as a model, through the town fires of the 16th century to industrialisation in the 19th century, all the important stages in the town's history are presented. Even the 'Dachtrauf' Swabian dialect spoken here can be called up in an audio description of the fire of 1533 which led to a witch burning and the legend of the "Devil of Schiltach".

Landscape relief in the Museum in the Marketplace

Hirschgrund Zipline Area Black Forest

Let yourself go!

On the line between heaven and earth - the Hirschgrund Zipline Area Black Forest.

You take that first decisive step, and leave the solid ground behind you. The rope pulley buzzes, you pick up speed and your pulse starts to race. The treetops part before you, shooting you into open space, and the headwind blows through your head. You leave your everyday worries way behind you. The intoxicating feeling of freedom and speed takes you to your destination, which you reach with a pounding heart. And now you feel that you're the bravest person in the world. Fear? What is that?

Trying to describe in words how the Hirschgrund Zipline Area Black Forest feels is actually impossible. Because ziplining here is a unique experience for everyone. Some people love to be so high up, and others are fascinated by being so close to nature. And quite a few enjoy the feeling of being in a group. But we can promise one thing - you'll all have fantastic fun.

A large, modern bathroom exhibition. In the foreground, a large white bathtub is partially visible, with a small dog and a large white fur rug on a dark grey platform. To the left is a glass-enclosed shower. In the background, a wooden vanity with a white sink and a large window with a view of a tropical landscape are visible. The room is decorated with a large white fur rug, a small dog, and a large white cushion.

The Museum presents the history of the private household bath from the 19th century to the most recent past in a series of authentically designed bathrooms. The individual exhibition areas bring to life the stages in the cultural history of the private bathroom - from peasant life with outside wells through the spartan bathrooms of the 1920s to the designer bathroom by Philippe Starck.

Water, knowledge and visions: the Hansgrohe Aquademie in Schiltach. This is where the past, present and future of bathrooms is combined with the fascination of water as an element. In the Hansgrohe Aquademie Visitor Centre at the corporate headquarters

“Schenkenburg” Castle Ruins

This former castle is the landmark of Schenkenzell; the seat of the “Schenken von Celle” (1244). It is one of the oldest castles in the Kinzig Valley. The castle became the property of the Fürstenbergs as from 1500 and was destroyed in 1534. It used to be a Norman castle, a watchtower and keep. Unfortunately it was never rebuilt. The castle ruins are easily accessible via a footpath.

The castle ruins are situated halfway between Schiltach and Schenkenzell. A themed trail around 1 km long with 10 information boards brings the story of the Schenkenburg to life for hikers.

Convent Museum Wittichen

Convent Museum: Old hand-carved crosses for graves, ornaments and a number of objects of value can be seen here. The history of mining in Wittichen is also represented. Showcases full of objects dating back to the times when the mines were still in use. There is also the possibility of digging yourself nearby as well as a geological trail to follow and gather further information. The church is open daily from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Convent at Wittichen: The Beguine sister Luitgard founded a hermitage in 1324.

This was later recognised as a convent. The story goes that a number of miracles happened at her grave and that is why ever since then people have made and still make their pilgrimages to Wittichen. Guided tours of the church and museum are available for groups on request.

A paradise for cyclists and walkers

Kinzig Valley Cycle Trail

From Freudenstadt to Offenburg – gently downhill all the way.

Wide valley floors along the lower and middle stretches of the Kinzig allow you – in the heart of the central Black Forest – to cycle on the flat surrounded by Black Forest mountains up to 1,000 m high. On your cycling tour through the Kinzig Valley, you can enjoy a wide variety of landscapes on a cycle path that runs gently downhill all the way. Ideal for leisure cyclists and family trips.

Kinzig Valley Rafter's Trail

Come with us along the Kinzig Valley Rafter's Trail and explore the history of this old craft. Audio guides for children and adults and fascinating experience stations along the way, turn the path from Alpirsbach to Wolfach into an exciting adventure.

The Kinzig Valley Rafter's Trail is a themed walking trail in the central Black Forest. It brings to life the old craft of timber rafting and everything connected with it.

Adventure trails for families

Robber Hotzenplotz Trail (Gengenbach)

The famous children's book "Hotzenplotz the Robber" by Ottfried Preussler, has given its name to two different "Robbers' Trails" and Grandma's Fruit Garden. In Gengenbach, a complete nature trail is dedicated to the hero of countless children, with lots of activity stations for balancing, climbing and throwing – guaranteed to be great fun.

Zeller Bachsteig (Zell am Harmersbach)

Hanna – daughter of the famous "Rooster and Hen" couple from Zeller Keramik – goes with you as you experience the wonderfully "refreshing" feeling of exploring a town from its stream.

Over a distance of 1.6 km – in the stream and on land – the Zeller Bachsteig leads right through the Old Town to the Fürstenberger Hof Local Museum.

Hademar Nature Experience Trail (Oberharmersbach)

Come with us on a short forest walk with a "wow" effect! Hademar Waldwichtel will tell you about his world in over 20 experience stations along the way. The nature experience trail, around 2 km long, takes you on an entertaining quest through nature. Creatively designed stations arouse your curiosity and provide information to children while leaving scope for their imagination.

Bächlewald (Haslach)

The adventure trail, which is about 4 km long, starts with an overview board at the "Waldsee Terrasse" inn and leads through the forest along little paths and forest trails. There's a chance to let off steam, explore nature, practice skills, have fun, enjoy the landscape – and then relax in the beer garden and playground, with mini-golf course and at the lake "Waldsee".

Adventure Trail (Hausach)

The 3 km long adventure trail takes you to the Kreuzberg, Hausach's "local mountain", and to the 800 year-old Husen castle ruins, with a wonderful view over the town and the Kinzig Valley. Along the way, there are stations where children can run wild and show their skills. There is a palisade fence run and earth tunnel, a tree trunk ladder, water games by the stream, a tree house or the popular multicoloured snake to balance on. And who will be able to throw the fir cones over the longest distance?

Hornberg Shoot Trail (Hornberg)

On this easy path from the town centre right up to the Schlossberg, you'll be entertained as you learn all about the event that gave rise to the German saying "like the Hornberg Shoot". Along the way, play stations make the trail special for children too, and there are also plenty of picnic spots. The path is suitable for families with baby buggies.

Kirnbach "Bollenhut" Valley Path (Wolfach)

Discover and experience Kirnbach along the Kirnbach "Bollenhut" Valley Path. The path starts or ends at the Kirnbacher Hof inn at the start of the valley or the Sonne inn in the centre of town, as you prefer.

From here, the path takes you 3.5 km over about 1.5 hours along the Kirnbach stream, either up the valley or downwards. There is plenty to discover along the path, for children as well as adults.
